

Legislative Records at the Archives of Michigan

The Archives of Michigan holds records from many standing committees of the Michigan House of Representatives and Senate, as well as records donated by individual legislators. Holdings for standing committee records begin in 1965, with records becoming more extensive in the mid-1970s. These records can provide insight into the intent behind a law. Below is a step-by-step guide to researching legislative records at the Archives of Michigan.

Step One: House and Senate Journals

The Archives of Michigan holds House and Senate Journals starting in 1965. In order to determine which committee records you need to research, you'll need to read the history of the bill. If you already know the House or Senate bill number, you can go right to the history of that bill in each journal. If you don't know the bill number and have the Public Act number, you can find it in the Table of Acts and Bill Numbers at the back of each journal. When you look through a bill's history, make sure to note the committees that discussed the bill and the dates the bill was sent to committee and reported out from committee.

Step Two: Standing Committee Records

Once you know the committees that discussed a bill and the dates it was discussed, you may be able to find records from those committees. The extent of the records varies over time, but you may be able to find bill drafts, meeting minutes, constituent and interest group correspondence, legislative analyses, and testimony. Some record groups may contain audio recordings of committee meetings. Reel-to-reel audio cannot be played in the Archives reading room, but it can be digitized for a small fee. Cassette tapes can either be played in the reading room or duplicated for a small fee. Please contact the Archives if you'd like more information about audio recordings. Please see Appendix A for a list of Archives holdings by committee and year.

Step Three: Special Committee Records

The Michigan legislature sometimes established committees to discuss specific issues outside of its normal standing committees. You may wish to check these records if you're unable to find standing committee records or you want to go beyond the standing committee records. Please see Appendix B for a list of special committee records by topic.

Step Four: Politicians' Papers

The Archives of Michigan also holds personal papers donated by former members of the legislature. These records may contain files related to bills a Senator or House member worked on during his or her time in office. These records are another good place to look if you can't find or want to go beyond standing committee records. Please see Appendix C for a list of politicians' papers that may be useful for legislative history research. If any of the items interest you, please contact the Archives for a more detailed list of records available.
